TREASURES FROM THE TIME-VAULT

While sorting thru a number of sci-fi mags in a friend's garage recently I came across a partial set of a series of 50 small cards which I should judge were issued in about 1935 in England. Called The World of Tomorrow, they were apparently included with packs of cigarettes much as today pictures of monsters are to be found packed with bubble gum. I thought your readers might like a look at the Space-Gun from THINGS TO COME and a couple of imaginative drawings of the future featured in the set.

READERS!—LIKE TO BE INSULTED?

I have been rather amused by the quality of your "fan" mail. More than 99.98% of the "fans" are nothing more than kiddies who have deluded themselves into thinking that Trash (no—strike Trash—TRASH) like 12 TO THE MOON and ANGRY RED PLANET are Science Fiction. Mr. (?) Lane of Calif. names Wells, Verne & Clarke as classic writers. He probably read Classic Comics version of THE TIME MACHINE and WAR OF THE WORLDS. What about Simak, Pohl, Kornbluth, Boucher, Poul Anderson, Judith Merrill, Robt. Sheckley, Alfred Bester, Isaac Asimov and all the others? As for this Clod Mayo, he hasn't grown out of Space Opera yet! Just in case, I might mention Edgar Rice Burroughs' classic Mars novels and ask if he's heard of them. They haven't much plot and aren't very sophisticated but they supply the color & gore that his type of mentality requires. The basic problem is that the number of good Imaginative Fiction films made is in the fingers on your hand. Not even the technically superb FORBIDDEN PLANET was very good plotwise. For your kiddie readers' information, the Jan. 1953 Astounding has an excellent listing of a basic science fiction library.

"12" TO THE MOON

I'm 12 and forever mooning about space. The spacesuit I'm wearing in my picture is the one that I ordered from your magazine. They are the greatest. So is SM. I have every issue to date and each one is better than the other. The one thing I want to see most is some exciting scenes from the discontinued Tom Corbett TV series. I think the best write-up on a movie was Collision Course (WHEN WORLDS COLLIDE) in No. 1.

MICHAEL KOPESKY
CHICAGO, ILL.

HOBBY HINT

I have a little hobby which I would like to pass on to every Spaceman & Spacewoman reading these pages. I collect articles & anything dealing with a movie or U.S. space development and staple them in the book in which they appear! At a Rocket Exposition in Detroit, I got a little piece of actual solid fuel used by S-11 (tank-destroying missile) and put it on the inside cover of SM No. 1. And on p. 42 of the same issue I stapled an article on Battle in Outer Space. In SM No. 2, I stapled a 4-pg. article on WAR OF THE WORLDS from Popular Science magazine. It had a picture of the drawings that went into the making of the Devil Ships. I made the "full-sized miniature" on paper and put it in a folder and glued it to the inside back cover.

WOODS TO FORREST

I am a fan of both Horror & Sci-Fi movies, having no preference. I do appreciate an adult level of writing. In SM No. 1, RIDERS TO THE STARS and 12 TO THE MOON had fair write-ups; best were WHEN WORLDS COLLIDE and BATTLE IN OUTER SPACE. No. 2: Tremendous article on WAR OF THE WORLDS—in my opinion the best article either SM or FM has ever published. Tremendous synopsis of THINGS TO COME but "How to Say Hello to a Martian" was a complete waste of space. No. 3: Fair cover. I wish you would feature famous science fiction characters on your covers like Robur the Conqueror, Capt. Nemo, Robby the Robot, Ymir from 20 MILLION MILES TO EARTH, saucer men from EARTH VS. THE FLYING SAUCERS, Michael Rennie from DAY THE EARTH STOOD STILL, Commando Cody and other such characters. You could also feature famous vehicles such as the submarines from 20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA and VOYAGE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA, the flying ship from MASTER OF THE WORLD, the Time Machine, and many different types of rocketships & space stations used in films. "Training for Space" another waste of space: this mag is supposed to be about science fiction not science-fact. THE LOST PLANET synopsis was very complete—I would like to see more of this type of thing. I love to see the old serials brought back to life and am very glad to see a magazine like SCREEN THRILLS ILLUSTRATED has been created for this purpose. Truly a great synopsis of GIRL IN THE MOON. No. 4: Terrific cover—I wish you would always have covers of this type. The advertising poster shown with "Return of the Saucers" was very good—I wish you would put at least one poster like this in every issue of SM & FM. I like your Super Space page and especially enjoyed the scene from MASK OF FU MANCHU. "They Came from Other Space" was interesting in the respect that the covers were true classics. "The Ace of Space" was very good and all photos accompanying it were collectors' items, especially the old advertising poster. Both publications are getting better & better. Keep up the good work.

Who are you trying to kid?! Originally Emperor Ming was to be fighting with Flash but suddenly the choice was either a half-blank cover or—? So, borrowing a popping eye from Peter Lorre, a bolt from the Frankenstein Monster, a swelled head from the Metaluna Mutant, a horn from a triceratops and the metallic arms from a robot, your resourceful publisher himself rushed out and got a Drew It Yourself Kit and, with the printer panting down his neck, painted the "Immortal Kitchen Sink Creature" which so many of you hailed as a Monsterpuss!

There was a singular, dead silence and then a shot rang out. The crew of 2 and the 7 passengers had vanished, the cargo was strewn about and the fuel tanks had been emptied. quatermass 3 on tv

Our British correspondent, HWDouthwaite, reports to us on the televersion of QUATERMASS AND THE PIT. "Before readers see the forthcoming film version," he says, "I'm sure they would like some more information on the original telecast." Certain you will agree, we present Douthwaite's review:

THE PIT was the most lavish & costly fantasy production yet screened by the British Broadcasting Co. The ancient Martian rocketship, a superbly weird design, was constructed of fibreglas and cost a considerable sum.

Top BBC visual effects men Jack Kine & Bernard Wilkie worked overtime on the epic, producing a multitude of varied & startling effects. "Prehistoric" Martians, truly fantastic in conception, were animated in a most lifelike way for a film sequence depicting Martian racial suicide, acted out millions of years ago on the Red Planet.

In one scene the evil influences radiating from the alien ship galvanize a host of pipes & power-lines into violent, ghostly action. To achieve this effect, many tiny apertures were drilled in the rubber tubings and compressed air forced thru, causing them to gyrate wildly as tho suddenly possessed with life.

Another impressive effect was accomplished when a gravel pathway was made to ripple as tho a pack of rats was running beneath it; additional impact was added to this chilling sequence by the skilfull use of small, squeaking sounds.

The film version, if anything like the original tele-serial, will be a classic all fantasy fans will clutch to their hearts.

Beaumont, who co-wrote the screenplay with Richard Matheson, took his preteen son to see the preview, and when the lights went up remarked, "Well, I think Fritz Leiber should be pleased with this version." Leiber is the author of the novel "Conjure Wife" on which BURN, WITCH, BURN is based and from which a previous picture, WEIRD WOMAN, was (too) loosely adapted.

BUCK ROGERS

When filmic fighters of the planetary beyond are discussed, it's FLASH GORDON in the person of Buster Crabbe, who usually gets all the applause. Tomorrow's great wonder, BUCK ROGERS, is somehow overlooked. Let's turn the spotlight on this great hero again as we zoom forth to the 25th century.

radio activates Rogers

Strange as it may seem, the 25th century began for Buck with the creation of his era in the 1920's. The New Yorker magazine took a deep look at this space age wonder when it reviewed his radio program on December 22, 1934:

Buck Rogers began as a cartoon strip about five years ago. Buck was an American soldier who was put to sleep by some mysterious gas after the World War (the first one) and woke up in the year 2400. He spends his time in the daily cartoon strip (and on the radio four times a week) flying around the brave new universe from planet to planet accompanied by one Wilma Deering, a pal (not a sweetheart). With them is Dr. Huer who invents all kinds of mechanical and chemical and psychic devices to foil and if possible destroy, Killer Kane and his pal, Ardala Valmar, who is a wretch. Some of the contraptions are rocket pistols, rocket ships, de-gravity belts, paralysis rays, lightning guns, space suits (which make it possible to step off into space without getting hurt) and an electro-hypno mentalaphone for reading the minds of villains and learning their dastardly plots. Columbia Broadcasting studios use 25 different motors to imitate the various mechanical devices of Dr. Huer. The sound of the psychic restriction ray, however, is made by a Schick razor. Mr. John F. Dille, who has his own syndicate, thought up Buck. The cartoon strip is drawn by Dick Calkins and written by Phil Nowlan.

"Zap!" you're disintegrated

The original radio program featured Matthew Crowley as Buck, Adele Ronson as Wilma Deering and Edgar Stehli as Dr. Huer. Yes, before the great movie serial, Buck was pictured in newspaper strips and heard on the radio. The kids went wild over him! Buck's products of all sorts dominated the American scene. Sorry indeed was the youngster who did not have his own Buck Rogers "Rocket Pistol". In one department store alone, 1500 were set loose upon the world, the first day on sale. The weapon was made of heavy metal in a super-futuristic design. When the trigger was pulled a snapping sound described as "Zap" was heard.

Dave Sharpe (left) as Buddy and Eddie Parker as Buck leap into a fight with Killer Kane's crowd. This shot shows the two stunt aces who performed the action the studio would not allow Buster to do.

the cameras roll

Working with a favorite like this, Universal Studios saw a natural hit for the movies. If they could obtain the world's foremost spaceman, Buster Crabbe, they were set. So, after 30 episodes of FLASH GORDON (in 2 serials), Buster became BUCK ROGERS in a 12 chapter space panorama.

After breaking the script down into episodic form, the production of the serial took six weeks. Action dominated the film as 3 top stuntmen (famed for later Republic serials) strutted their stuff. Dave Sharpe, Eddie Parker and Tom Steele received the jolts as they were joined by Roy Barcroft and Kenne Duncan (later Republic villains) this time as defenders of right. The players in support of Buster as Buck Rogers were Constance Ford as Wilma Deering, C. Montague Shaw as Dr. Huer, Jackie Moran as Buddy and Anthony Warde as Killer Kane. In the stunt department, Eddie Parker doubled for Buster while Dave Sharpe filled in for Jackie Moran. This sounds quite amazing, as who has ever been in better physical shape than Buster Crabbe? However, even if he wanted to do all his own stunting, the studio would not permit it. They had quite a bit of money invested in him (as the central figure in this production) so they had no plans of jeopardizing their investment.

Captain Rankin (Jack Mulhall) and Lieutenant Lacy (Kenne Duncan) discover the 20th century Buck in a state of suspended animation in the 25th century.

Buster's views on Buck

Recently, I discussed stuntwork and other cinematic situations with Buster Crabbe, who commented as follows:

SPACEMEN—"How did they determine what action was to be doubled?"

BUSTER—"The further you got in the picture, the more of a chance they were taking of getting the star cracked up. The result being, holding up production at a good deal of added expense (production-wise), or not being able to complete the picture at all."

SPACEMEN—"Thinking about today's space achievements, did people at the time BUCK ROGERS was made, think these films were the wildest, craziest things in the world?"

BUSTER—"Yeah, (with a chuckle) a little bit. But the films went over pretty well."

SPACEMEN—"I notice Phillip Ahn was cast as Prince Tallen, ruler of Saturn. Was there a specific reason for choosing an Oriental actor for the role?"

BUSTER—"He's Korean and you see him a lot today. He's turned out to be quite a good actor. As far as the casting goes, who knew just what a Saturnian should look like anyway?"

SPACEMEN—"I wonder if you remember how they did any of the special effects?"

BUSTER—"Oh sure. In some shots the spaceships didn't move, the background

There is no escape for Wilma Deering from these weird creatures. Who are they?

moved as it was on a rotary drum. The special effects men blew smoke around the ship and once in a great while they'd swoop one down. But the ships were hard to control because they were operated on a pendulum rig. If the spaceships weren't handled just right, they looked phonier than they actually were. Some of the attacks were rigged using strings and with the smoke covering up the faults, it didn't look too bad."

SPACEMEN—"How big were the actual miniature ships that were filmed?"

BUSTER—"On the average, about 10 inches."

SPACEMEN—"Do you remember anything about the ray guns?"

BUSTER—"You might be interested to know that the ray effect was done by scratching lines on the actual film frames. The prop department at Universal dreamed up the space gun design by trying to follow the original comic strip drawings."

one can defy gravity

SPACEMEN—"Who directed Buck Rogers?"

BUSTER—"The directors were Ford Beebe and Saul Goodkind, a former film editor. He was actually a cutter directing, and he planned the editing as the film was being shot."

SPACEMEN—"How were the de-gravity belt effects obtained?"

BUSTER—"Piano wire. We wore harnesses the same as Mary Martin used as PETER PAN. The only dangers being kinks, if one formed, the wire would break. But there were no broken necks, bones or anything like that."

SPACEMEN—"Where were the outdoor scenes, that were supposed to take place on other planets, shot?"

BUSTER—"Mostly at Chatsworth, Red Rock Canyon and the Mojave Desert, all of them not too far from the studios in California."

SPACEMEN—"Was there much promotion and touring with films like BUCK ROGERS?"

BUSTER—"Oh sure, just because it was a serial is no reason why they shouldn't publicize it. The serials made more money for the studios than a lot of their big pictures. A three-quarter million dollars production budget was spent on the first FLASH GORDON, but it paid off in big dividends."

SPACEMEN—"When a serial was made,

Buster Crabbe as Buck Rogers, the hero of tomorrow who climbed to popularity heights never before achieved.

Buster demonstrates the "25th century slam" as he downs one of Killer Kane's men.

Dr. Huer and his assistants prepare their ray machine for immediate action.

were Cliffhanger scenes shot two or three ways to get the hero out of peril for the next chapter?"

BUSTER—"Yes, serials were always shot that way. For example: a man is shown actually falling off a cliff—cut—that's the end of one episode. Then for the next chapter, they pick up showing him roll down and then grab something to save himself. They cheat a little so that he never actually fell off. You know, I was a serial fan even before I got into pictures and I'll never forget the trickery they used then to save the hero."

SPACEMEN—"Do you enjoy watching your own features & serials today?"

BUSTER—"I'm critical of them. Some of the ones I enjoyed working in, I enjoy watching. I often wonder though, why I did the scene the way I did. But sometimes, after not seeing a picture for a long time and thinking it's very poor, I'm pleasantly surprised."

SPACEMEN—"Back in 1952, you had an ABC-TV show on which BUCK ROGERS and some of your other films were run. Was there much of a fan club connected with the films and this show?"

BUSTER—"You bet! We had BUSTER'S BUDDIES clubs and there were 35,000 members in the New York area alone. The kids loved the serials and these films are still the type of entertainment they'd like a lot today."

They certainly are the type of entertainment that everybody enjoys, if Buster Crabbe is the star. He's the man who brought a new dimension to the chapter play—acting! We believed in Buck and the other characters Buster played, because his acting convinced us that a situation was really desperate. Even in the fantastic-futuristic settings, the conflicts became real. These were the only films of their kind; they can never be recreated!

In next issue's concluding installment, we'll return with the movie story of BUCK ROGERS. What happens when Buck is made a helpless robot slave of the filament ray helmet? Can Killer Kane destroy Buck's hidden city and thus rule the Earth? Is Saturn the planet where enemies or friends dwell? Who are the horrible Zugg men? And what is the story behind the failure of a 1950 BUCK ROGERS TV series without Buster Crabbe? You'll find out the answers to these questions, and much more, as we return with the 25th century and adventure in the future.

THE MONSTER MAKER

By Leonard Spaulding

In this exciting 2-part thriller about a future rocket-roving photographer for Cosmic Films, the young author—only 24 —to our mind writes like a man who might one day chronicle Martian adventures, create works as hot as Fahrenheit 451, even script a whale of a movie. See if you don't agree.
Unusual, unexpected things happen thick and fast in the concluding installment of this startling story. Well worth waiting for! Don't miss the unpredictable conclusion, next issue...

O'HENRY'S
COMET
tales with a twist in their tail

SUDDENLY, it was there. There wasn't time to blink or speak or get scared. Click Hathaway's camera was loaded and he stood there listening to it rack-spin film between his fingers, and he knew he was getting a great picture of everything that was happening.

The picture of Marnagan hunched huge over the control-console, wrenching levers, jamming studs with freckled fists. And out in the dark of the forepart there was space and a star-sprinkling and this meteor coming like blazing fury.

Click Hathaway felt the ship move under him like a sensitive animal's skin. And then the meteor hit. It made a spiked fist and knocked the rear-jets flat, and the ship spun like a cosmic merry-go-round.

There was plenty of noise. Too much. Hathaway only knew he was picked up and hurled against a lever-bank, and that Marnagan wasn't long in following, swearing loud words. Click remembered hanging to his camera and gritting to keep holding it. What a sweet shot that had been of the meteor! A sweeter one still of Marnagan beating the controls and keeping his words to himself until just now.

It got quiet. It got so quiet you could almost hear the asteroids rushing up, cold blue and hard. You could hear your heart kicking a tom-tom between your sick stomach and your empty lungs.

Stars, asteroids revolved. Click grabbed Marnagan because he was the nearest thing, and held on. You came hunting for a space-raider and you ended up cradled in a slab-sized Irishman's arms, diving at a hunk of metal death. What a fade-out!

"Irish!" he heard himself say. "Is this it?"

"Is this what?" yelled Marnagan inside his helmet.

"Is this where the Big Producer yells CUT!"

Marnagan fumed. "I'll die when I'm good and ready. And when I'm ready I'll inform you and you can picture me profile for Cosmic Films!"

They both waited, thrust against the shipside and held by a hand of gravity; listening to each other's breathing hard in the earphones.

The ship struck, once. Bouncing, it struck again. It turned end over and stopped. Hathaway felt himself grabbed; he and Marnagan rattled around—human dice in a croupier's cup. The shell of the ship burst, air and energy flung out.

Hathaway screamed the air out of his lungs, but his brain was thinking quick crazy, unimportant things. The best scenes in life never reach film, or an audience. Like this one, blast it! Like this one! His brain spun, racketing like the instantaneous, flicking motions of his camera.

SILENCE came and engulfed all the noise, ate it up and swallowed it. Hathaway shook his head, instinctively grabbed at the camera locked to his mid-belt. There was nothing but stars, twisted wreckage, cold that pierced thru his vac-suit, and silence. He wriggled out of the wreckage into that silence.

He didn't know what he was doing until he found the camera in his fingers as if it had grown there when he was born. He stood there, thinking "Well, I'll at least have a few good scenes on film. I'll—"

A hunk of metal teetered, fell with a crash. Marnagan elevated seven feet of bellowing manhood from the wreck.

"Hold it!" cracked Hathaway's high voice. Marnagan froze. The camera whirled. "Low angle shot; Interplanetary Patrolman emerges unscathed from asteroid crackup. Swell stuff. I'll get a raise for this!"

"From the toe of me boot!" snarled Marnagan brusquely. Oxen shoulders flexed inside his vac-suit. "I might've died in there, and you nursin' that film-contraption!"

Hathaway felt funny inside, suddenly. "I never thought of that. Marnagan die? I just took it for granted you'd come through. You always have. Funny, but you don't think about dying. You try not to." Hathaway stared at his gloved hand, but the gloving was so thick and heavy he couldn't tell if it was shaking. Muscles in his bony face went down, pale. "Where are we?"

"A million miles from nobody." They stood in the middle of a pocked, time-eroded meteor plain that stretched off, dipping down into silent indigo and a rash of stars. Overhead, the sun poised; black and stars all around it, making it look sick.

"If we walk in opposite directions, Click Hathaway, we'd be shaking hands the other side of this rock in two hours." Marnagan shook his mop of dusty red hair. "And I promised the boys at Luna Base this time I'd capture that Gunther lad!"

His voice stopped and the silence spoke.

Hathaway felt his heart pumping slow, hot pumps of blood. "I checked my oxygen, Irish. Sixty minutes of breathing left."

The silence punctuated that sentence, too. Upon the sharp meteoric rocks Hathaway saw the tangled insides of the radio, the food supply mashed and scattered. They were lucky to have escaped. Or was suffocation a better death...? Sixty minutes.

They stood and looked at one another. "Blast that meteor!" said Marnagan, hotly.

Hathaway got hold of an idea; remembering something. He said it out: "Somebody tossed that meteor, Irish. I took a picture of it, looked it right in the eye when it rolled at us, and it was poker-hot. Space-meteors are never hot and glowing. If it's proof you want, I've got it here, on film."

Marnagan winced his freckled square of face. "It's not proof we need now, Click. Oxygen. And then food. And then some way back to Earth."

Hathaway went on saying his thoughts: "This is Gunther's work. He's here somewhere, probably laughing his guts out at the job he did us. Oh, God, this would make great news-release stuff if we ever get back to Earth. I.P.'s Irish Marnagan, temporarily indisposed by a pirate whose dirty face has never been seen, Gunther by name, finally wins through to a triumphant finish. Photographed on the spot, in color, by yours truly, Click Hathaway. Cosmic Films, please notice."

THEY started walking, fast, over the pocked, rubbed plain toward a bony ridge of metal. They kept their eyes wide and awake. There wasn't much to see, but it was better than standing still, waiting.

Marnagan said, "We're working on margin, and we got nothin' to sweat with except your suspicions about this not being an accident. We got 50 minutes to prove you're right. After that—right or wrong—you'll be Cosmic Films prettiest unmoving, unbreathin' genius. But talk all you like, Click. It's times like this when we all need words, any words, on our tongues. You got your camera and your scoop. Talk about it. As for me—" he twisted his glossy red face. "Keeping alive is me hobby. And this sort of two-bit death I did not order."

Click nodded. "Gunther knows how you'd hate dying this way, Irish. It's irony clean through. That's probably why he planned the meteor and the crash this way."

Marnagan said nothing, but his thick lips went down at the corners, far down, and the green eyes blazed.

They stopped, together. "Oops!" Click said.

"Hey!" Marnagan blinked. "Did you feel that?"

Hathaway's body felt feathery, light as a whisper, boneless and limbless, suddenly. "Irish! We lost weight, coming over that ridge!"

They ran back. "Let's try it again."

They tried it. They scowled at each other. The same thing happened. "Gravity should not act this way, Click."

"Are you telling me? It's man-made. Better than that—it's Gunther! No wonder we fell so fast—we were dragged down by a super-gravity set-up! Gunther'd do anything to—did I say anything?"

Hathaway leaped backward in reaction. His eyes widened and his hand came up, jabbing. Over a hill-ridge swarmed a brew of unbelievable horrors. Progeny from Frankenstein's Ark. Immense crimson beasts with numerous legs and gnashing mandibles, brown-black creatures, some tubular and fat, others like thin white poisonous whips slashing along in the air. Fangs caught starlight white on them.

Hathaway yelled and ran, Marnagan at his heels, lumbering. Sweat broke cold on his body. The immense things roiled, slithered and squirmed after him.

A blast of light. Marnagan, firing his proton-gun. Then, in Click's ears, the Irishman's incredulous bellow. The gun didn't hurt the creatures at all.

"Irish!" Hathaway flung himself over the ridge, slid down an incline toward the mouth of a small cave. "This way, fella!"

Hathaway made it first, Marnagan bellowing just behind him. "They're too big; they can't get us in here!" Click's voice gasped it out, as Marnagan squeezed his 250 pounds beside him. Instinctively, Hathaway added, "Asteroid monsters! My camera! What a scene!"

"Forget your camera!" yelled Marnagan. "They might come in!"

"Use your gun."

"They got impervious hides. No use. Gahh! And that was a pretty chase, eh, Click?"

"Yeah. Sure. You enjoyed it, every moment of it."

"I did that." Irish grinned, showing white uneven teeth. "Now, what will we be doing with these uninvited guests at our door?"

"Let me think—"

"Lots of time, little man. Forty more minutes of air, to be exact."

THE MONSTER MAKERS THE MONSTER MAKERS THE MONSTER MAKERS

THEY sat, staring at the monsters for about a minute. Hathaway felt funny about something; didn't know what. Something about these monsters and Gunther and—

"Which one will you be having?" asked Irish, casually. "A red one or a blue one?"

Hathaway laughed nervously. "A pink one with yellow ruffles—Good God, now you've got me doing it. Joking in the face of death."

"Me father taught me; keep laughing and you'll have Irish luck."

That didn't please the photographer. "I'm an Anglo-Swede," he pointed out.

Marnagan shifted uneasily. "Here, now. You're doing nothing but sitting, looking like a little boy locked in a bedroom closet, so take me a profile shot of the beasties and myself."

Hathaway petted his camera reluctantly. "What's the use? All this swell film shot. Nobody'll ever see it."

"Then," retorted Marnagan, "we'll develop it for our own benefit; while waiting for the U.S. Cavalry to come riding over the hill to our rescue!"

Hathaway snorted. "U.S. Cavalry."

Marnagan raised his proton-gun dramatically. "Snap me this pose," he said. "I paid your salary to trot along, photographing, we hoped, my capture of Gunther, now the least you can do is record peace negotiations betwixt me and these pixies."

Marnagan wasn't fooling anybody. Hathaway knew the superficial palaver for nothing but a covering over the fast, furious thinking running around in that red-cropped skull. Hathaway played the palaver, too, but his mind was whirling faster than his camera as he spun a picture of Marnagan standing there with a useless gun pointed at the animals.

Montage. Marnagan sitting, chatting at the monsters. Marnagan smiling for the camera. Marnagan in profile. Marnagan looking grim, without much effort, for the camera. And then, a close-up of the thrashing death wall that holed them in. Click took them all, those shots, not saying anything. Nobody fooled nobody with this act. Death was near and they had sweaty faces, dry mouths and frozen guts.

When Click finished filming, Irish sat down to save oxygen, and used it up arguing about Gunther. Click came back at him:

"Gunther drew us down here, sure as Ceres! That gravity change we felt back on that ridge, Irish; that proves it. Gunther's short on men. So, what's he do; he builds an asteroid-base, and drags ships down. Space war isn't perfect yet, guns don't prime true in space, trajectory is lousy over long distances. So what's the best weapon, which dispenses with losing valuable, rare ships and a small bunch of men? Super-gravity and a couple of well-tossed meteors. Saves all around. It's a good front, this iron pebble. From it, Gunther strikes unseen; ships simply crash, that's all. A subtle hand, with all aces."

Marnagan rumbled. "Where is the dirty rat, then?"

"He didn't have to appear, Irish. He sent—them." Hathaway nodded at the beasts. "People crashing here die from air-lack, no food, or from wounds caused at the crackup. If they survive all that—the animals tend to them. It all looks like Nature was responsible. See how subtle his attack is? Looks like accidental death instead of murder, if the Patrol happens to land and finds us. No reason for undue investigation, then."

"I don't see no Base around."

THE MONSTER MAKERS THE MONSTER MAKERS THE MONSTER MAKERS

CLICK shrugged. "Still doubt it? Okay. Look." He tapped his camera and a spool popped out onto his gloved palm. Holding it up, he stripped it out to its full 20" length, held it to the light while it developed, smiling. It was one of his best inventions. Self developing film. The first light struck film-surface, destroyed one chemical, leaving imprints; the second exposure simply hardened, secured the impressions. Quick stuff.

Inserting the film-tongue into a micro-viewer in the camera's base, Click handed the whole thing over. "Look."

Marnagan put the viewer up against the helmet glass, squinted. "Ah, Click. Now, now. This is one lousy film you invented."

"Hub?"

"It's a strange process'll develop my picture and ignore the asteroid monsters complete."

"What!"

Hathaway grabbed the camera, gasped, squinted, and gasped again: Pictures in montage; Marnagan sitting down, chatting conversationally with nothing; Marnagan shooting his gun at nothing; Marnagan pretending to be happy in front of nothing.

Then, close-up—of—NOTHING!

The monsters had failed to image the film. Marnagan was there, his hair like a red banner, his freckled face with the blue eyes bright in it. Maybe—

Hathaway said it, loud: "Irish! Irish! I think I see a way out of this mess! Here—"

He elucidated it over and over again to the Patrolman. About the film, the beasts, and how the film couldn't be wrong. If the film said the monsters weren't there, they weren't there.

"Yeah," said Marnagan. "But step outside this cave—"

"If my theory is correct I'll do it, unfraid," said Click.

Marnagan scowled. "You sure them beasts don't radiate ultra-violet or infra-red or something that won't come out on film?"

"Nuts! Any color we see, the camera sees. We've been fooled."

"Hey, where you going?" Marnagan blocked Hathaway as the smaller man tried pushing past him.

"Get out of the way," said Hathaway.

Marnagan put his big fists on his hips. "If anyone is going anywhere, it'll be me does the going."

"I can't let you do that, Irish."

"Why not?"

"You'd be going on my say-so."

"Ain't your say-so good enough for me?"

"Yes. Sure. Of course. I guess—"

"If you say them animals ain't there, that's all I need. Now, stand aside, you film developing flea, and let an Irishman settle their bones." He took an unnecessary hitch in trousers that didn't exist except under an inch of porous metal plate. "Your express purpose on this voyage, Hathaway, is taking films to be used by the Patrol later for teaching Junior Patrolmen how to act in tough spots. First hand education. Poke another spool of film in that contraption and give me profile a scan. This is lesson number seven: Daniel Walks Into The Lion's Den."

"Irish, I—"

"Shut up and load up."

Hathaway nervously loaded the film-slot, raised it.

"Ready, Click?"

"I—I guess so," said Hathaway. "And remember, think it hard, Irish. Think it hard. There aren't any animals—"

"Keep me in focus, lad."

"All the way, Irish."

"What do they say . . . ? Oh, yeah. Action. Lights. Camera!"

Marnagan held his gun out in front of him and still smiling took one, two, three, four steps out into the outside world. The monsters were waiting for him at the fifth step. Marnagan kept walking.

Right out into the middle of them. . . .

HERE'S MORE EXCITING PAPERBACK BOOKS!

NIGHTS BLACK AGENTS

Nine great tales of horror by Fritz Lieber, Jr. Bone-chilling stories of ancient evils who come to life wherever and whenever violent human emotions call them into being, to feast on the grisly terror of their hapless victims. Sheer mayhem! Real terrors that exist in large cities! Read this one at your own risk!

ZACHERLEY'S VULTURE STEW

Once again, ZACHERLEY dares to present a magnificent concoction of superior horror stories. This selection will chill, edify, delight and paralyze — spicing them (as Zacherley always does) with ghoulish humor, the result is sheer mayhem. An excellent collectors item!

INVISIBLE MEN

Invisibility is an idea which has enchanted mankind for ages — and is the perfect blueprint for exciting horror. No wonder that some of the finest writers have written on this theme! Among the very best are stories in this paperback.

TALES TO BE TOLD IN THE DARK

Do you have a secret desire to chill blood, tingle spines? Here are ten stories by the masters of horror, with hints by the editor on reading them aloud to your own circle. You'll be the life of the wake.

DEALS WITH the DEVIL

Have you ever considered making a deal with the devil to gain your most eager desires? And yet not finally have to pay the score? Here is a collection of 12 terrifying tales about those who did — and those who succeeded.

VILLAGE OF THE DAMNED

Here is a great story of children fathered by fiends unknown... blonde, blazing-eyed monsters who could be our masters tomorrow. The terrifying original story that was made into the hit MGM movie... one of the outstanding films of the year. Enough to scare the bravest reader!

THE DOLL MAKER

A tale of piercing terror about the agony of a poor victim who cannot escape the strange mastery of an egomaniac practicing unknown horrors. A graphic, emotional short novel of weird and chilling characters that seem absolutely real — by a new author of frightening tales: Sarban. Don't miss this!

SOME OF YOUR BLOOD

Another great modern horror story by Theodore Sturgeon — one of the most exciting authors of the terrible tale. Here is a short horror novel that reaches a haunting intensity. A brilliant novel of modern times that will play fantastic tricks with your imagination. The best from the master of fantasy!

ZACHERLEY'S MIDNIGHT SNACKS

Zacherley's own choice of short stories featuring a brew of ghouls, vampires, ghosts & creatures as horrible as you would want to meet—with special cheering notes on each from old Zach himself.

THE OTHER PASSENGER

Selected short stories calculated to chill the blood. Like the hero of The Other Passenger, you suddenly feel beyond the yellow circle of your reading lamp there's something waiting, waiting to pounce. The bristles on the back of your neck rise up, a shiver runs down your spine...

THINGS WITH CLAWS

Here's one we could not put down until the last page was read! An absolutely fascinating collection of stories having to do with "clawed" creatures with murderous motives. Truly terrifying tales of worlds we dream about but wouldn't want to visit—and the creatures that inhabit these dream worlds!

NIGHTMARES

Weird tales by Robert Bloch are unique in the literature of terror. Millions of readers have been fascinated by his macabre masterpieces in magazines, books, motion pictures, radio and television. He has won the "Hugo" trophy for the year's best short story, the Edgar Allan Poe Special Award of the Mystery Writers of America.

CREEPS BY NIGHT

These are very special tales of horror. They are introduced by the late Dashiell Hammett, called by The New York Times one of America's greatest craftsmen of suspense. They include masterpieces by the most renowned experts of terror. They will give you hours of "deliciously shocking" reading. These weird tales are for the true horror fan.

THE MACABRE READER

Dance of Death, that fearsome carnival of the skeletons, weaving their gruesome evils in and out of the lives of the living, summarizes the essence of each of these shock masterpieces. Here are stories of terror from the lingering horrors of ancient Egypt to the unnamed monsters of the frigid cold and the tropic jungle.

MORE MACABRE

Specially designed to curdle your blood... That's this book. We call it MORE MACABRE, because that's what it is. The stories selected here are as ghoulish as any you'll find in print anywhere. They are the kind that will seek out that special little point of fright hidden in your soul—and prod it out, shrieking, into the night.

GREATEST ADVENTURE

When a sea captain brought a baby dinosaur to the home of a wealthy, brilliant scientist, it triggered off an expedition that well deserves the title of THE GREATEST ADVENTURE. For the trail of that little creature led straight into the unexplored, quake-shaken Antarctic to a lost world overrun with monsters!

THIS PLANT ACTUALLY EATS INSECTS AND BITS OF MEAT!

NOW YOU CAN OWN THIS FAMOUS, BEAUTIFUL, RARE

VENUS FLY TRAP

only $1.00 THE WORLD'S MOST UNUSUAL HOUSE PLANT!

DISCOVERED BY ARTHUR DOBBS,
COLONIAL GOVERNOR AND NATURALIST

On Jan. 24,
1760, Governor
Dobbs wrote,
"... the greatest wonder of the vegetable kingdom is a very curious,
unknown species

... Upon anything touching the leaves they instantly close like a spring trap
... It bears a white flower; to this surprising plant I have given the name Fly Trap."

ADMIRER BY CHARLES DARWIN, WORLD FAMOUS
BOTANIST AND EXPLORER

In 1875 Professor Darwin wrote, "This plant, commonly called 'Venus
Fly Trap,' from the rapidity and force of its movements, is one of the most wonderful in the world ... It is surprising how a slightly damp bit of meat ... will produce these ... effects. It seems hardly possible, and yet it is certainly a fact."

A BEAUTIFUL PLANT! The VENUS FLY TRAP is unusually beautiful! It bears lovely white flowers on 12" stems. Its dark green leaves are tipped with lovely pink traps—colorful and unusual!

EATS FLIES AND INSECTS! Each pink trap contains a bit of nectar. It is this color and sweetness which attracts the unsuspecting insect. Once he enters the trap, it snaps shut. Digestive juices then dissolve him. When the insect has been completely absorbed, the trap reopens and prettily awaits another insect!

FEED IT RAW BEEF! If there are no insects in your house, you can feed the traps tiny slivers of raw beef. The plant will thrive on such food. When there is no food for the traps, the plant will feed normally through its root system.

EASY TO GROW! The VENUS FLY TRAP bulbs grow especially well in the home. They thrive in glass containers and develop traps in 3 to 4 weeks. They will beautify any room in your house. Each order includes 3 FLY TRAPS plus SPECIAL GROWING MATERIAL packed in a plastic bag. Only $1.00.

Unwary insect touches sensitive hairs, causing trap to shut. Plant then dissolves & digests insect. Trap will bite at (but will NOT bite off) more than it can chew—such as a finger or a pencil. In a few days, after eating an insect, it will reopen for more food.

MEN ON THE MOON?

NO, NOT REALLY. THE ABOVE RARE PHOTO IS FROM A RECENT RUSSIAN FILM "WAY TO THE STARS" ABOUT SPACE PILOTS, THEIR ROCKETS AND THEIR ADVENTURES ON OTHER PLANETS. IS THERE A CHANCE YOU'LL MISS OUR COVERAGE OF THIS MOVIE IN A FUTURE ISSUE OF SPACEMEN? NOT IF YOU HAVE A SUBSCRIPTION! INSURE YOUR FUTURE BY MAKING SURE NOW OF YOUR NEXT 6 NUMBERING NUMBERS OF THE WORLD'S ONE & ONLY SPACE-ACTION FILMAGAZINE.
